

NEWS AND COMMENT

BY GAIL M. GIBSON

Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission

HISTORICAL SOCIETIES

At the meeting on June 3, members of the Adams County Historical Society heard Dr. Wilbur E. Tilberg tell of his youth in Kansas in the late 1880's. Dr. Charles Glatfelter and Dr. Robert Bloom, of Gettysburg College, interviewed him and provided background information. On August 5, the society sponsored a tour to the Francis Scott Key house, the Pipe Creek defense line of the Gettysburg campaign, and General Meade's headquarters, all in the Taneytown, Maryland, vicinity.

The Allegheny City Society elected the following officers at the spring meeting: James A. Dorsey, president; Ray L. Heddaeus, vice-president; Adrian J. Briggs, recording secretary; Mrs. Martha O'Moore, corresponding secretary; and Miss B. W. Schocner, treasurer. Members of the society are working to save the old Allegheny Post Office from demolition. The chronological history of Allegheny City compiled by A. J. Briggs has been revised and printed in book form.

The Allegheny-Kiski Valley Historical Society held a dinner reception on August 27 to celebrate the 110th anniversary of the discovery of oil at Titusville on August 27, 1859. Guest of honor at the dinner was Glendon Smith, last surviving grandchild of "Uncle Billy" Smith, the man who brought in the first oil well for Colonel Drake. A ten foot replica of the Drake Well, built by the late oil historian Jesse Harwell Gravatt, was unveiled at the dinner.

On August 17, members of the Historic Preservation Trust of Berks County toured the sites which the group is preserving. A picnic supper at the Mouns Jones House completed the evening.

The Mouns Jones House Country Fair was held on October 11 from 10:00 to 5:00.

As part of its centennial year celebration, the Historical Society of Berks County sponsored a public reading of the Declaration of Independence on July 8, the date in 1776 when it was originally read. Sheriff Harold A. Yetzer read the Declaration at ceremonies attended by the County Commissioners and the Mayor and Council of Reading. Alan M. Hawman, Jr., president of the Berks County Bar Association, gave the chief address. Wilbur C. Dickinson presented his photo essay "People, Places, Pastimes, 1869" on September 27. Dr. William Hummel, Albright College, has been named editor of the society's Historical Review.

The Blair County Historical Society recently toured Prince Gallitzin State Park and Glendale Dam, and concluded this summer outing with a visit to the Lemon House. This early railroad inn is serving as the headquarters of the Allegheny Portage Railroad National Historic Site. At the inn, the National Park Service is currently providing a fifteen minute slide lecture depicting canal and railroad travel between Pittsburgh and Philadelphia from 1834 to 1854.

The Bucks County Historical Society has engaged Dr. Claire Gilbride Fox to act as museum consultant and advisor to the board, officers and staff. She is to prepare a list of recommendations for the future operation of the society to assist the Board in developing long-range plans. Robert R. Macdonald has resigned as curator to begin work for his doctorate at the Eleutherian Mills-Hagley Foundation.

The annual meeting of the Centre County Historical Society in May featured a slide lecture by Hubert Koch entitled "A Century of Progress—One Hundred Years of State College and Penn State." The society held a picnic on July 30. At the September meeting, Hugh Manchester and Paul Dubbs discussed the "Central Railroad of Pennsylvania."

Members of the Chester County Historical Society took their annual pilgrimage on July 12, to the studio of Violet Oakley in Chestnut Hill. Miss Edith Emerson, companion of Miss Oakley, talked of the artist and her work. She then guided the tour through the Woodmere Gallery.

At the June meeting of the Clarion County Historical Society, Donald J. Woodland, chairman of the Baker Trail Development of the American Youth Hostels, Inc., gave an illustrated talk on the Baker Trail. The society took its annual out-of-county historical tour on June 26, and visited the covered bridge at McGees Mills, Canoe Place at Cherry Tree, the Catholic Church in Carrolltown, the Indian trail to the east of Carrolltown, and Horseshoe Curve at Altoona. Raymond C. Garvin of the Blair County Tourist Bureau met the group there, and served as guide for the Altoona area during the afternoon.

Members of the Clinton County Historical Society participated in one of the recent meetings by bringing their own old guns and ammunition to the meeting and joining in a general discussion following a talk by two well known authorities on the subject. At another meeting John Joseph Stoudt of Kutztown State College gave an illustrated lecture about the various phases of illuminating art as practiced by the Pennsylvania Germans. Charles Kent of the history department at Lock Haven State College is directing the rearrangement of items in the museum to allow their more advantageous display.

The Historical Society of the Cocalico Valley has announced plans to publish a fourth booklet in the series by Milton H. Heinicke about Ephrata. Scheduled publication date is December first.

The Colonial Philadelphia Historical Society held its fourteenth annual Youth Award Program on May 15 at Congress Hall. Awards totaling $1,500 were presented to the thirteen students who scored highest in an examination on colonial history. Dr. Margaret B. Tinkcom, historian of the Philadelphia Historical Commission, was the speaker for the evening.

At the annual dinner meeting of the Conshohocken Historical Society in May, Dr. Joseph Leary, vice-president, gave a slide presentation of the history of the Harry family. Dr. Leary later presented this talk to the Plymouth Meeting Historical Society.

The May 19 meeting of the Dauphin County Historical Society was held in the Market Square Church where the society was formed in May, 1869. Evan J. Miller presented the program. In June, Merlo Hartzell talked of meetings of the society held during the last hundred years.

The annual meeting of the Delaware County Historical Society was held at the Williamson School for Mechanical Trades on September 28. A dinner meeting on October 6 at the MacMorland Center of P.M.C. Colleges featured a talk by Rev. David A. MacQueen on "John P. Crozer, Pietistic Businessman." The borough of Upland, which is celebrating its centennial this year, grew chiefly as the result of the Crozer family's establishing a mill there. The society is cooperating with other groups to raise the $14,000 necessary to begin restoration of the Old Courthouse in Chester.

The annual dinner of the Elk County Historical Society in April was a celebration of the society's fifth anniversary. Professor Samuel A. King, of the Du Bois Campus of Penn State, discussed "Little Known Facts on Elk County History."

The June meeting of the Goschenhoppen Historians took place at the McCoach barn on the Jacob Reiff Park property recently acquired by Lower Salford Township. Robert C. Bucher described the characteristics of early American barns. A covered dish picnic supper was held on July 17. The third annual Folk Festival on August 15 and 16 featured nearly 125 craftsmen demonstrating 45 crafts.

The Harmonie Associates sponsored a versammlung, or apple-fest, and concert on September 28. On November 19, Eric de Jonge, Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission, will describe early Pennsylvania Christmases.

The Jefferson County Historical Society participated in the annual Jefferson County Laurel Festival again this year by floating a log raft on the Red Bank Creek. Arthur Altman supervised the construction of the raft in the same manner as the old river rafts were constructed. A large replica of historic Brockway was also displayed under the society's auspices.

The Kittochtinny Historical Society held a tour of historic sites on June 21, for the first time in its existence. Members visited the Captain Samuel Patton homesite, Fort McCord, the site of Fort Armstrong, Edenville Furnace, James Chambers' office, and Mt. Pleasant Inn, and ended the day with a dinner at the Fort Loudon Inn.

Speakers at recent Lackawanna Historical Society meetings have been: Col. Zim E. Lawhon, "History and Present Status of the R. O. T. C."; Timothy Scully, "Political Vituperation Local and National"; and George A. Spohrer, "The Knox Coal Disaster." At the annual dinner meeting on May 21, the Honorable T. Linus Hoban presented "My Life in the Lackawanna County Courts."

The Lancaster Community Historians are enjoying their five summer field trips to various parts of Lancaster County. "Around Strasberg," by C. D. Spotts, will soon be released as the Community Historians Yearbook.

The Lancaster Mennonite Conference Historical Society held an open house on August 23 to mark its fifth year in its present headquarters. Over 12,000 persons have visited the Mennonite Information Center this year.

The bimonthly meeting of the Ligonier Valley Historical Society on August 4 attracted a crowd of approximately 300 persons. Through the courtesy of the Fort Ligonier Memorial Foundation, their new promotional film "Yes, Yes, Not Oui, Oui," was viewed. The film relates the story of the early history of the United States, and the manner in which the English victory in the French and Indian War insured our development as an English-speaking rather than a French-speaking nation. The film is available for group showings through Richard W. Bittner, Fort Ligonier Memorial Foundation, South Market Street, Ligonier, Pennsylvania 15658.

At a dinner meeting of the Lycoming County Historical Society on September 25, James C. Humes, speech writer for President Nixon, spoke of "History in the Making." On October 16, James P. Bressler, dean of applied arts and sciences, Williamsport Area Community College, described "The Wild Lycoming—Stream of History."

The Marple Newtown Historical Society underwent incorporation procedures last spring to gain the authority to restore the Bartram Covered Bridge, built in 1860. Enough donations have been received to allow this work to begin.

Recently elected officers of the Mercer County Historical Society are: John G. Johnson, president; Orvis Anderson and David Miller, vice-presidents; Helen Reed, secretary; and Mrs. James Patterson, treasurer.

Members of the Monroe County Historical Society who attended the annual tour traveled to Jim Thorpe, Carbon County, on June 28. They visited the Asa Packer Mansion, the Carbon County Courthouse, St. Mark's Church, and the Jim Thorpe Mausoleum.

The recently organized Monroeville Historical Society has recently received its charter. The group will receive the old McGinley house, built in 1804, as a gift from the Westinghouse Electric Corporation, which presently owns the land upon which the house is standing. James Mirro, president of the society, has invited any interested persons to attend its meetings, which are held the third Monday of each month at 8 p.m. in the Church of Christ, Center Road and Northern Pike.

The Montour County Historical Society held open house at the Montgomery Museum in Danville and the Mooresburg School Museum on June 8. Approximately 450 persons toured one or both sites. Recently elected officers are: Thomas D. Magill, president; Ernest Bower, Jr., vice-president; Miss Julia M. Warner, secretary; and Miss Helen Carodiskey, treasurer.

From the sale of Thomas Taber's "Muncy Valley Lifeline," the Muncy Historical Society and Museum of History has realized sufficient funds to redecorate the upstairs room of the historical house, restore the period rooms, and repaint the exterior of the building. The society is represented on the "Site Preservation Committee" for Lycoming County.

The New Brighton Historical Society received its charter from the Beaver County Courts in May, 1968. Meetings are held in the Merrick Free Art Gallery the fourth Tuesday of each month. The society sponsored the recent dedication of a historical marker at "White Cottage," the New Brighton home of the author Grace Greenwood. Highlight of the summer meetings was a theater party, open to all in the community who wish to attend.

The Newville Historical Society met on September 18 to hear William H. Shank describe "Vanderbilt's Folly."

The Historical Society of Pennsylvania is in the process of receiving the papers of General Anthony J. Drexel Biddle (1896-1961), four loads having so far been delivered by station wagon. This valuable collection covers General Biddle's entire career as a soldier and diplomat. Another large collection recently acquired is the correspondence of the Grubb family, ironmasters of Lancaster County. Notable in this collection are the letters received by Colonel Peter Grubb, Jr., during the Revolution and a large number of Revolutionary broadsides, some of which are unrecorded. Because of the rapid growth of the society's manuscript collection, a new storage area of large size has been prepared for twentieth-century collections.

The Pennsylvania Poetry Society celebrated its twentieth anniversary with a special luncheon program on October 18. The first meeting of the society, on October 21, 1949, was held at the old state museum building under the auspices of the Pennsylvania Folklore Society. Colonel Henry W. Shoemaker was the founder of the group.

The Perryopolis Area Historical Society has taken an option on 68 acres of land believed to be the site of the first voting place in Fayette County. The land is adjacent to the Washington Grist Mill site, presently owned by the society. The recent formation of the Perryopolis Parks and Recreation Area is expected to facilitate funding of the restoration.

The Historical Society of the Philadelphia Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church announces the publication of the journal of Joseph Pilmore, first pastor of Old St. George's United Methodist Church, in Philadelphia. The Journal, which covers the time period from August 1769 to January 1774, was edited by Frederick E. Maser, society librarian, and Howard T. Maag, acting librarian.

The Polish Historical Commission of the Central Council of Polish Organizations commemorated the 350th anniversary of the enfranchisement of the Jamestown Poles on August 31. A bronze plaque honoring the one hundredth birthday of Madame Curie was unveiled by His Eminence Karol Cardinal Nojtyla of Poland on September 21. Dedication ceremonies for a bronze plaque honoring General Casimir Pulaski took place in York on October 11.

James H. Smythe, professor of church history at Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, and editor of the Journal of Presbyterian History, presented the address at the twelfth annual Founders' Day program of the Presbyterian Historical Society on October 9. Dr. Smylie discussed "Presbyterians and the American Revolution."

The Shippensburg Historical Society held its annual picnic on July 10 at the Middle Spring Road.

The Snyder County Historical Society has moved into spacious new quarters in the basement of Seibert Hall at Susquehanna University. The move has enabled the society to display articles from its collections and to house its library adequately. Beginning in the fall, all regular meetings will be held in these rooms.

The cornerstone for the new Somerset County Historical Museum and Library was laid at ceremonies held on June 1. District Attorney Alexander Ogle served as master of ceremonies. William N. Richards, director of the Bureau of Museums, Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission, spoke encouragingly of historical activity in the area. A speech by the Honorable Paul Mahady, who was unable to be present, was read by his brother Regis Mahady.

Members of the Theodore Burr Covered Bridge Society awarded an honorary membership to Governor Raymond P. Shafer on May 9. It was on this day that Governor Shafer signed the bill passed by the General Assembly to provide an annual "See Pennsylvania's Covered Bridges Week" in May.

The Historical Society of Trappe celebrated its annual homecoming September 19-21. An antique show was held on Friday and Saturday, and historic homes and churches of the area were open to the public on Saturday. A memorial service on Sunday afternoon was followed by the memorial caravan march through Trappe, and a buffet dinner and musical program in the evening.

The first issue of the Union County Historical Society's journal, "Union County's Heritage," is now available to the public at a cost of $2.50 per copy to non-members. Charles F. Lindig and Mrs. Charles W. Kalp served as co-editors of the journal.

The Valley Forge Historical Society held its Fete Champetre, a garden party celebrating the announcement of the French alliance on May 6, 1778, at the General Maxwell headquarters, a pre-Revolutionary house recently acquired by the Commonwealth at Valley Forge. Historic costumes, wine tasting, homemade gourmet delicacies, and music in the spirit of the occasion marked the celebration. Thirty Boy Scouts from Bethel Park (Pittsburgh) earned their historic scout badges by refurbishing the Conestoga wagon and the United States mail coach, labelling the electric panorama map of the encampment, and cleaning muskets and rifles. Two students worked during the summer to prepare a cross-reference file of the society's acquisition file.

As a co-sponsor of the Memorial Day raising of the three area historical flags, the Warren County Historical Society was host to dignitaries including Dr. S. K. Stevens, James B. Stevenson, and Eric W. Cook, British consul in Cleveland. The society visited the Governor Reuben Fenton Mansion, now the museum building of the Fenton Historical Society in Jamestown, New York, on June 8. Residents conducted a walking tour of interesting sites in Pittsfield on August 10. Coffee and a display of local artifacts, documents, and photographs completed the afternoon.

The Westmoreland County Historical Society has been notified that the Pennsylvania Department of Community Affairs has approved the county's application for Project 70 funds to be used in the purchase of the Steele farm at Hannastown. The society is planning to restore this site of the first courthouse west of the Alleghenies as a historical landmark.

A Founder's Day program of the Westmoreland-Fayette Historical Society on June 21 featured a talk by Miss Mary Kolb on "The Place of the Frick Commission in the Educational Enrichment of Westmoreland and Fayette Counties." Rodney D. Mosier presented awards to local junior historians.

The Wyoming Historical and Geological Society has rewritten the cemetery records in its collection by placing them all in binders, rather than on the slips of paper on which they were formerly kept. Additional material has recently been received for the Mathias and George M. Hollenback Papers, and for the Reynolds-Dorrance Collection. The latter contains documents relating to the first coal company in the Wyoming Valley, and some of the Abijah Smith Papers. The society's publication program continues, with the eighth volume of the Susquehanna Company Papers scheduled to be published in October, and the new issue of the Proceedings also expected in that month. The Wyoming Valley Garden Club contributed to the authenticity and attractiveness of the Swetnam House this summer by cultivating a herb garden of fifty-one varieties there.

HISTORIC PRESERVATION

The Karthaus iron furnace in Centre County is undergoing extensive restoration under the supervision of Francis Perrot of Frenchville, a stone mason. The project is sponsored by the Central Pennsylvania Community Action committee, and is receiving aid from the United States Department of Labor, the Youth Corps, and On the Job Training. Two years were spent cleaning the site and clearing away rubble before the crew of five regular workers and two youths could begin actual rebuilding of the furnace this summer.

The Middletown Historical Restoration Commission toured the first ward of the borough, with Dr. Irwin Richman of the Penn State Capitol Campus serving as guide. The commission hopes to conduct further tours until the entire borough has been covered, and then to maintain a photographic record of the picturesque and historically valuable structures.

The Pittsburgh History and Landmarks Foundation held its first summer walking tour on July 13, when the members explored Troy Hill. A historic landmark was placed on the Shrine of St. Anthony. The Duquesne Incline was designated a historic landmark at a recent ceremony, and appropriate plaques were presented.

The Pusey House and Landingford Plantation has transferred the land involved in their project to Delaware County as a county historical park. The foundation will still maintain the Caleb Pusey House and other buildings on the property, but it will now be eligible for increased financial assistance. Foundation members are presently raising funds to convert a large frame house into a Reception and Orientation Center.

The Historical Society of West Newton has entered into a contract with Paul V. Mitchell of Ligonier to conduct a preliminary study of the John C. Plumer House, South Water Street, West Newton. Measurements and drawings of the house as it now is will be prepared.

Historic Delaware County, Inc., and the Delaware County Historical Society, have established a "Court House Fund" to raise the $14,000 necessary for current maintenance of the 1724 Chester courthouse, oldest public building in the United States. Without immediate attention, the buildings may not withstand the winter. Bills have been introduced in the General Assembly to allow the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission to take over administration of the courthouse, provided that the money for the repair work be raised. Donations may be sent to the "Court House Fund," Historic Delaware County, Inc., Box 267, Swarthmore, Pennsylvania.

Restoration of the Tuscarora Academy in Juniata County has been started by the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission, using funds allocated from the Commonwealth's share in Project 500 money made available by the federal government. All the stone masonry construction will be repointed; the interior will be replastered and painted; the original stairway leading to the dormitory rooms on the second floor will be replaced; and the dormitory rooms themselves will be restored.

A seminar on environmental services was held on August 12 in Harrisburg. Over 300 conservationists, highway designers and engineers, and cabinet officials attended the seminar which was sponsored by the Planning and Design Division of the Department of Highways. The purpose of the gathering was to coordinate efforts of the planners and the conservationists to insure cooperative planning of future roads and to avoid environmental mistakes.

OF MEN AND MANY THINGS

Dedication ceremonies for the site of the Pennsylvania State University Libraries Research Library on July 3 marked the beginning of a new concept in the university's library services. Previously scattered research collections will be brought together to provide more complete bibliographic information, greater depth of collections, and much longer periods of availability.

The new library of the New York State Historical Association was formally dedicated in conjunction with the association's annual meeting in Cooperstown July 12 and 13. Lyman H. Butterfield, editor-in-chief of the Adams Papers at the Massachusetts Historical Society, was the speaker at the ceremonies. The library has facilities to house more than 90,000 volumes, special collections, such as the folklore and folklife archives, a newspaper storage area for some 500,000 papers, and a special audio-visual room for tapes, records, films, and slides. The second floor contains a special manuscript department and a double classroom for the use of the Cooperstown graduate program students.

Among the rivers to be studied under the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act of 1968 are Pennsylvania's Allegheny and Youghiogheny. Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel and Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin announced that the studies will be made to determine whether these rivers, and twenty-five others, will be included in the National Wild and Scenic Rivers System.

The Snyder-Middleswarth Tall Timber Area, in Snyder County, was formally dedicated as a National Natural Landmark at ceremonies conducted by the United States Department of the Interior on July 30. Euell Gibbons, noted nature writer from Beavertown, Pennsylvania, was the principal speaker.

The Pennsylvania Dutch Folk Culture Society sponsored its third annual Pennsylvania Dutch Folk Fair on July 19 and 20. In addition to the traditional crafts, farm activities, and foods, exhibits depicting seasonal celebrations and several historical periods were presented.

According to the spring bulletin of the Moravian Music Foundation, Columbia Records plans to reissue selections from its three volumes of "Music of the American Moravians" on its bargain Odyssey label with the same title as the full series, and with the number 32-16-0340. The abridged selection should be an interesting introduction to Moravian music.

The Herodotans, the student historical society at King's College, arranged for the address of M. Reginald de Warren, French

Consul General at Philadelphia, on the subject, "Servan-Schreiber and the French Posture vis-à-vis the United States."

Joseph E. Walker, professor of history at Millersville State College, received a research grant from the Committee for Research in Economic History of the Economic History Association. Dr. Walker will use the grant to continue his work on the early rolling mills of Pennsylvania, with particular emphasis on the development of the Lukens Steel Company before 1850. Dr. Walker was the author of an article in the summer issue of Labor History comparing wages and work opportunities for Negro and white workers at Hopewell Furnace before the Civil War.

The Pennsylvania history faculty of Bloomsburg State College is offering a "Seminar on Columbia County" to adults in the evening classes during the fall semester, 1969-1970.

Dr. Robert E. Carlson, chairman of the history department at West Chester State College, has received a grant from the American Philosophical Society to support his research during his fall semester sabbatical.

The Scotch-Irish Foundation is conducting a contest in which prizes will be given for the best essay on Pennsylvania's Scotch-Irish heritage. Further details about the contest may be obtained from John W. McPherson, secretary, 530 Walnut Street, Philadelphia 19105.

An open house was held at the newly-expanded Fort Bedford Museum on May 24. Improvements to the actual fort have been completed, and the expanded exhibit space will allow additional collections to be displayed.

Mrs. Juanita Johnson and her fifth grade class at Jefferson Elementary School, Warren, received a 1968 Valley Forge Teachers Medal for their production of the film, "We Wanted Our Freedom And We Won It."

Archeology students from Temple University have resumed their investigation of the old Allegheny Portage Railroad right-of-way at the Lemon House, east of Cresson. Additional work is being done on Inclined Plane 8, near the Muleshoe Curve in Blair County. David G. Crozier, research assistant to the chairman of the department of anthropology at Temple, is serving as field director of the work.

Field crews from the archeology section of the William Penn Memorial Museum conducted summer archeological explorations at two Susquehannock Indian sites just south of Washington Boro, along the Susquehanna River. Barry Kent, state archeologist, directed the work at the Strickler site, and Ira Smith, associate curator of archeology, directed work at the Schultz site. A field crew from the North Museum of Franklin and Marshall College, directed by Fred Kinsey, worked in the same general area on the Murry site.

Dedication ceremonies were held this summer at several of the museums administered by the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission. On June 22, the blacksmith shop at the Pennsylvania Farm Museum near Lancaster was opened after its removal nearly two years ago from its original site near Gettysburg. The Fort Pitt Museum was opened to the public on June 30. Rex T. Lohmann is serving as curator of the museum, which provides a story of Fort Pitt and western Pennsylvania from the 1750's to the establishment of the city of Pittsburgh. On August 8, Governor Raymond P. Shafer dedicated the Drake Well Museum near Titusville. The recently-completed museum features exhibits detailing the development of the petroleum industry from the day the first well was drilled at Drake Well, August 28, 1859. The railroad museum, scheduled to be constructed near Strasburg during 1970, has received a director, George M. Hart. He will work in the Commission's Bureau of Museums while designs and initial exhibits for the museum are completed.

The Division of History, Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission, announces the publication of two new historical leaflets. Linda M. McCurdy wrote "The Underground Railroad in Pennsylvania," and Dennis T. Lawson was the author of "The Centennial Exhibition of 1876." Paul Beers rewrote the leaflet "Harrisburg: Pennsylvania's Capital City." These leaflets are available at a cost of $.05 individually, and $.03 if purchased in quantities of ten or more. The Division of History also has copies available of the most recent cooperative publication of the Pennsylvania Historical Association. Dr. Irwin Richman was the author of Pennsylvania's Architecture, an attractive 64-page booklet with numerous illustrations. It sells for $1.00 and is also available from the Division of History. Residents of Pennsylvania should add 6% Pennsylvania state sales tax to their orders.