

Contributors

MICHAEL J. BIRKNER is Associate Professor of History at Gettysburg College and editor of PENNSYLVANIA HISTORY. Birkner's books include The Governors of New Jersey, 1664-1974: Biographical Essays (1982); Samuel L. Southard: Jeffersonian-Whig (1984); and The Papers of Daniel Webster: Correspondence, 1850-1852 (1986). He is currently working on a history of the Presidency and the press.

DOUGLAS E. BOWERS is Head of the Agricultural and Rural History Section of the Economic Research Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture. In addition to work in agricultural policy, he continues to pursue his interest in nineteenth century legislative history. His article, "From Logrolling to Corruption: The Development of Lobbying in Pennsylvania, 1815-1861," appeared in the Winter 1984 number of the Journal of the Early Republic. Bowers is completing a book on the Pennsylvania Legislature between 1815 and 1873, based on his doctoral dissertation at the University of Chicago.

JAMES P. WEEKS is Research Project Associate in the Division of Planning Studies at the Pennsylvania State University, University Park. Weeks's work on George Atherton is part of ongoing doctoral work in higher education and history at Penn State.

AARON FOGLEMAN is a doctoral student in History at the University of Michigan. Currently writing a dissertation on German immigration and settlement in Greater Pennsylvania, 1727-1775, he has published articles in Zeitschrift des Breisgau-Geschichtsvereins and Comparative Studies in Society and History.

