Under the by-laws, no person could be admitted as a member without the consent of a majority of the directors and such applicant paid as much as they deemed a share was worth at the time of his admission. The membership was restricted to one hundred members. The heir-at-law or legatee of any member was entitled to become a member, if approved of by the board of directors, or, if not approved of, he was to be paid by them the value of his share. If any one removed from the country, the majority of the directors might permit him to sell his share in the books and effects of the company, and, with their approval, the purchaser might become a member in his stead. One of these transfers, which is in the hands of George Steinman, of this city, reads as follows:

“I, James Sayre, being about to remove from Lancaster County, do hereby, in consideration of Five Pounds, lawful money of Pennsylvania, to me paid by Jasper Yeates, of the Borough of Lancaster, Esquire, assign, transfer and set over to the said Jasper Yeates, Esquire, all my right, interest and estate in and to the books, estate and effects of the Juliana Library-Company in Lancaster, and request that the directors of the said company will confirm the said transfer.

“Witness my hand and seal the twentieth day of April, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Seven Hundred and Seventy-One.

Sealed and delivered in the presence of

William Atlee. James Sayre.”

There were seventy-seven persons named as incorporators in the charter, and the first directors of the corporation were Edward Shippen, Thomas Barton,
Isaac Whitelock, James Burd, William Henry, Joseph Rose, Adam Simon Kuhn, John Hopson, Thomas Poulteny, William Atlee, and George Ross. Of these directors, Edward Shippen, Thomas Barton, Isaac Whitelock, Joseph Rose, Adam Simon Kuhn and George Ross had served since the institution of the library in 1759, and William Atlee since 1760. James Burd, John Hopson and Thomas Poulteny seem to have been newer members.

The catalogue contains a full list of books in the library at that time, viz:
