Notes on Contributors

PATRICIA COOPER has a joint appointment as an associate professor of women's studies and history at the University of Kentucky. She specializes in U.S. labor and women's history, and has a special interest in race and African American workers. This essay is part of a book project entitled "Gender, Race, and Jobs: Conflicts over Work in Philadelphia, 1930-1970." She is also writing about the Sun Shipbuilding and Drydock Company in Chester, Pennsylvania.

EDWARD LAWLER, JR., is an independent scholar currently engaged in research for a book on the President's House. His writings on the theater have appeared in TheaterWeek, The Sondheim Review, and This Month on Stage.
