To bring history to the people and the people to history, THE HISTORICAL SOCIETY OF PENNSYLVANIA, an independent, nonprofit research institution, works to expand American history's documentation, accessibility, and use. Founded in 1824 and significantly augmented in 2002 by The Balch Institute for Ethnic Studies, HSP serves as a vital gateway to historical resources and understanding for educators and researchers, regional heritage preservationists and presenters, and community history partners. HSP preserves and explores the origins, diversity, and development of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and the nation as one of the great repositories of United States history, as the preeminent library of Pennsylvaniana, and as a distinguished publisher and educator.

The preservation and care of HSP's extraordinary collections and the funding for its various programs and publications is made possible through the generous support of HSP's members, friends, and donors.

Contributors

JACQUELYN C. MILLER is an associate professor of history, department chair, and director of the Diversity, Citizenship, and Social Justice Core Program at Seattle University. She is currently working on a project focusing on masculinity, race, and illness during the Lewis and Clark expedition.

JUDITH RIDNER is an associate professor of history at Muhlenberg College in Allentown, PA. She is working currently to complete a long-standing book project on the history of eighteenth-century Carlisle, PA. She has also begun work on a new project that seeks to explore how memories of violence in Ireland influenced the attitudes and behaviors of Scots-Irish frontier settlers in eighteenth-century America.

JONATHAN W. WHITE is a PhD student in U.S. history at the University of Maryland, College Park. His dissertation, "To Aid Their Rebel Friends," is a study of the Democratic Party in the North during the Civil War.
