METROPOLITAN PHILADELPHIA

Living with the Presence of the Past

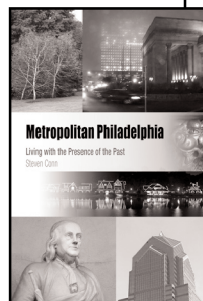

Steven Conn

"Steven Conn's book is just a delight. It is beautifully researched and written. It is meditative and soulful. Why is Philadelphia great? Why is it so special? Why must it be preserved? Conn's book, presented with clarity and affection, makes the best case for the city I have read in a very long time. Quakerism. Clark Park. William Penn. Pearl Buck. The city mural program. The orchestra. The zoo. Conn has tied all the different roots and traditions and institutions of the Philadelphia region together in a wonderful package."

—Buzz Bissinger, author of A Prayer for the City and Friday Night Lights

AT WORK IN PENN'S WOODS

THE CIVILIAN CONSERVATION CORPS IN PENNSYLVANIA

Joseph M. Speakman

The Civilian Conservation Corps was one of the most popular programs of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal. Over the nine years of the program, from 1933 to 1942, over two and one-half million unemployed young men found work on conservation projects across Depression-stricken America. "Roosevelt's Tree Army," as the CCC men were sometimes called, planted billions of trees, fought forest fires, did historic preservation work, and constructed recreational facilities in state and national parks. At Work in Penn's Woods offers a rich and compelling portrait of Pennsylvania's CCC program.

MONEY PITCHER

CHIEF BENDER AND THE TRAGEDY OF INDIAN ASSIMILATION

William C. Kashatus

"In many ways, American Indian players were the first pioneers to integrate major league baseball. And of these integrators, Charles Albert Bender was among the first and certainly the greatest, a cornerstone of the Philadelphia Athletics' championship teams. Money Pitcher, Bill Kashatus's well-written and well-researched biography, tells Bender's story at length, from his early days on the White Earth Reservation, to his glory days as a World Series hero, to his last days as a Philadelphia pitching coach. This is a great life story, sensitively told by Kashatus."

Green Republican

John Saylor and the Preservation of America's Wilderness

THOMAS G. SMITH

$40.00 • Cloth • 542 pp.

"This absorbing biography probes Saylor's shrewd, sometimes blunt, maneuvers to defend wild places and enact legal protection for some of our most treasured landscapes, from the Allegheny Mountains to the Grand Canyon. Thomas G. Smith restores John Saylor to his rightful place in the annals of American environmental history."

— Char Miller, Trinity University

Industry in Art

Pittsburgh, 1812 to 1920

RINA C. YOUNGNER

$29.95 • Cloth • 200 pp.

"Industry in Art is an excellent analysis of the development of Pittsburgh into a major industrial center, shown through paintings, illustrations, and sketches of its artists. Youngner details the dynamic and varying roles played by art and its importance in depicting an evolving industrial society."
