Contributors

BRIAN ALNUTT is a graduate of Muhlenberg College and Lehigh University and specializes in nineteenth- and twentieth-century American social history. He is now in the early stages of a study of 1940s-era civil rights legislation in New Jersey. Born in Philadelphia and raised in Mt. Laurel, New Jersey, he is a descendant of the Nanticoke-Lenni Lenape Indians of New Jersey.

CHARLENE MIRES is associate professor of history at Villanova University, where she teaches courses in the history of Philadelphia, public history, urban history, and material culture. She is the author of Independence Hall in American Memory (2002). In addition to the Pennsylvania Magazine of History and Biography, she serves on the editorial boards of the Public Historian and the Journal of American History. She is editor of the Pennsylvania History Studies Series published by the Pennsylvania Historical Association.

GARY B. NASH is director of the National Center for History in the Schools at UCLA. He is the author of many books and articles on Philadelphia's history, including First City: Philadelphia and the Forging of Historical Memory (2002). His most recent books are The Unknown American Revolution: The Unruly Birth of Democracy and the Struggle to Create America (2005) and The Forgotten Fifth: African Americans in the Age of Revolution (2006).

ROGER D. SIMON is professor of history at Lehigh University. He has written on immigration and ethnic neighborhoods in Milwaukee and Pittsburgh. He is the author of Philadelphia: A Brief History, published by the Pennsylvania Historical Association in 2003.
