Contributors

ANN D. GORDON, a retired historian, edited historical documents for thirty-five years, concluding with the six-volume Selected Papers of Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Susan B. Anthony (1997–2013). She is the author of The College of Philadelphia, 1749–1779: Impact of an Institution (1989) and chief editor of the collection African American Women and the Vote, 1837–1965 (1997).

KATIE FISHER is a double major in American Studies and History at Christopher Newport University, an intern at the Mariners' Museum in Newport News, Virginia, and a Ferguson Fellow for the Hampton Road Oral History Project.

JONATHAN NASH is an assistant professor of history at the College of Saint Benedict and Saint John's University. He teaches courses on the history of early America, the Atlantic world, and the early United States.

EDWARD SLAVISHAK teaches US history at Susquehanna University. He is the author of Bodies of Work: Civic Display and Labor in Industrial Pittsburgh (2008) and articles about work and embodiment, artificial limbs, eugenics, and hiking in the Smoky Mountains. His current research projects consider travel and expertise in the Appalachian Mountains and “depressions great and small” in central Pennsylvania.

ELIZABETH WALL is a double major in American Studies and History at Christopher Newport University and an intern at Colonial Williamsburg.

JONATHAN W. WHITE is assistant professor of American Studies at Christopher Newport University. His most recent book, Emancipation, the Union Army, and the Reelection of Abraham Lincoln (2014), won the Abraham Lincoln Institute's 2015 book prize, was named a Best Book of 2014 by Civil War Monitor, and was a finalist for both the Lincoln Prize and the Jefferson Davis Prize.
