Special Advisor to the Provost on Faculty Diversity
Massachusetts Institute of Technology

Judy "JJ" Jackson is Special Advisor to the Provost on Faculty Diversity at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. She is also a doctoral candidate at the Harvard Graduate School of Education, with a concentration in higher education administration. Her dissertation in progress looks at engineering faculty productivity and experiences, and how they differ by race and gender. Her research will provide a fact-based data set that will help to inform development of a faculty diversity program to be implemented through the MIT Provost's Office.

Ms. Jackson holds a BA degree from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, and an MA from Bucknell University in central Pennsylvania. Before joining the MIT administration, she held academic administrative positions at Bucknell University, and at Cornell University.
