

EDITORIAL POLICY FOR THE MAGAZINE

The Western Pennsylvania Historical Magazine reflects the primary objects of the Society, namely, "to increase and diffuse knowledge of the history of Western Pennsylvania," past and present. Western Pennsylvania is defined very broadly as "the headwaters of the Ohio River system and items, events, etc., related thereto." Manuscripts dealing with subject matter outside this category will be considered only if they contain material of special importance and historical value.

The use of primary source material, new interpretation, new discoveries, unique subject matter, etc., are all taken into consideration when the editorial board considers possible publication. Originality of treatment, general interest of the article, and the style in which it is written are additional criteria for acceptance. A special section of the magazine is reserved for those manuscripts falling into the more specialized category of personal reminiscences or interesting family history.

Those interested in submitting manuscripts should refer to A Manual of Style (1969 edition), published by the University of Chicago, for matters of editorial style. Recent back issues of the Western Pennsylvania Historical Magazine should be consulted for the preferred form in footnoting and quantity of footnotes (brevity is strongly recommended). Illustrative material pertinent to the subject matter of the manuscript is welcomed, especially those that can be reproduced as line copy (artwork containing only blacks and whites, with no shading — i.e., pen and ink drawings, charts, etc.).

Two copies of the article should be submitted together with a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The author should retain a copy of the manuscript. It should be typewritten (pica type preferred), double-spaced, and with footnotes typed on separate pages at the end of the article.

Please allow at least eight weeks for review of each manuscript by the editorial board. Submit manuscripts to
